

Sitecore Hackathon

Hack the experience!

The logo icon for Sitecore Hackathon features two stylized red figures sitting at a table, each with a laptop. Above them is a red clock icon, symbolizing a time-limited event like a hackathon.

Submission by Habitual Losers

Sitecore Hackathon Website – This idea is sooo meta! Several years have passed with the current version and it's in need of a refresh.

OUR PLAN

- Simple Site
- Core functionality
 - A search page
 - A page to list all hackathons
 - A page per hackathon
 - A signup page using Sitecore Forms for next hackathon
 - A mailing list page, also using Sitecore Forms
 - Focus on functionality, design later
- Do all of this without writing any code, SXA all the way!

Special Note: We noticed that the current Hackathon site is built on WordPress, so we decided to retain the look and feel, maybe some functionality too!

KNOWN ISSUES

- Forms do not work in Ajax mode
- Form validation and styling is funky
- Site has basic styling
- Forgot to wire up the logo as a link

Resolution plan

- Anything that does not work needs will be reported to Sitecore support.
Remember we did not code a thing. It is all OOTB components
- If you like our site, we could use creative exchange to style it

MESSAGE TO THE JUDGES

Here is why we should win

1. We did not write any code to build the site. We simply used the components available. Did it the way Sitecore advertises it.
2. We retained aspects of the old site (WordPress 😊), to impress you!
3. We really need that prize money

If ours is not the best submission, we will settle for a special recognition 😊

Q.How many members can be in each team?

A.There can only be 3 team members maximum in a team.

Q.Do we have to work on our module all 24 hours of the hackathon?

A.No, you can schedule your time and delegate appropriately. You can use as much or as little of the 24 hours to build your module.

Q.I am a Team of One but want to participate, what can I do?

A.We see this every year, where we find either an individual or a team of two, get in touch with me. I can try to pair you up with others in the similar situation and help you form a team.

Q.Can I team up with other members not in the same organization and form a team?

A.Absolutely, you can team up with any other Sitecore developer to form a team.
